

Mission

The ASU Libraries are settings, both virtual and physical, in which to uncover, discover and learn. We provide seamless access to collections and services for students, faculty, ASU's partners, and the community to promote the New American University's goals of access, excellence, and impact. Our service-oriented staffs support virtual and physical environments that assure access to data, information, and knowledge resources, and strive to foster information competence and critical thinking skills.

ATTENTION DOCTORAL STUDENTS!

Students in the College of Teacher Education and Leadership's Ed.D. program receive support from a dedicated library liaison program.

Do you need help...

Getting started with research?
Finding articles for your literature review?
Understanding APA style?

Call or email me! I am a specialist in library resources for education students with ten years of classroom teaching experience. I can help you with finding the right information for your research by using the library's resources.

Top 5 Resources for Doctoral Students

1.  - This button lets you know where and how to obtain articles found in our databases, online, in print, or through interlibrary loan. The "Get it" button is seen as databases are searched. It is also available in RefWorks.
2. RefWorks  - (<http://www.asu.edu/refworks>) - an online tool for managing bibliographic citations. Keep a running list of your citations and format custom bibliographies.
3. ERIC (CSA)- The premier database for education is often the best place for you to begin research. Our licensed product through CSA provides the "Get it @ ASU" feature and allows for direct import to RefWorks. Use the ERIC (CSA) database rather than <http://eric.ed.gov>. ERIC (CSA) can be found through the Database Finder under 'education'.
4. Journal Title Lookup- Use this link (top left corner of library web page) to find online full text electronic journals in education and other related subject areas.
5. In-Depth Research Consultations- I am available to assist you with your research needs in person, by phone or email.

ALL ELECTRONIC LIBRARY RESOURCES ARE ACCESSIBLE OFF-CAMPUS, ANY TIME, ANY PLACE!
